35) Title: Israel-Iran Tensions Raise Oil, Gold, and Travel Costs
Source: Eenadu
Date: 15-06-2025

ETV Bharat: Tensions rise between Israel and Iran — Concerns that the ongoing tensions will lead to another war are growing. These developments are likely to cause a huge increase in crude oil prices and severe disruptions to air traffic. Countries around the world are expressing concern that the Iran nuclear talks with the US have also stalled.Crude Oil Prices: While the Ration Lion and subsequent Iranian retaliatory attacks are leading to a full-scale war, this is causing many negative effects on the countries of the world. In particular, crude oil prices are set to increase sharply. Due to disruptions in supply from Iran, crude oil prices are soaring. As a result, diesel and petrol prices may also increase. Iran produces 3.3 million barrels of crude oil daily and exports 1.5 million barrels. 20 percent of the world's oil trade passes through the Strait of Hormuz. Iran has previously warned that it will block this transport if it is attacked. For now, crude oil supplies from Saudi Arabia and the UAE are likely to temporarily block the problem from escalating. If Iran closes the Strait, crude oil prices could rise from $120 to $130. Aviation Costs: The cost of air travel is rising sharply in the face of the coronavirus pandemic. Flights are also likely to be delayed. The latest developments are raising concerns about air safety, especially given the past shooting down of civilian aircraft. Air India has diverted 20 flights due to tensions between Israel and Iran. As many countries close their airspace, congestion on routes such as Mumbai–London, Saudi Arabia or Turkey will increase. As a result, pressure will increase on air traffic control. As operating costs increase, airlines are likely to increase ticket prices. Between Russia–Ukraine and Israel–Gaza, the aviation industry, already burdened by conflicts, is under further pressure. Gold Prices: Experts say that gold prices are also likely to increase significantly due to ongoing conflicts. This is because during wars, investors divert their money to risk-free assets like gold. This naturally leads to an increase in gold prices. This becomes a burden on the common man. Export Costs: The closure of sea routes is likely to cause problems for Indian exports. Due to the Israel–Iran conflict, Indian exports will have to be diverted to other routes. This will definitely increase the cost of transportation. Due to the closure of the Suez Canal and the Red Sea routes, Indian ships will have to pass the Cape of Good Hope. This will take them 15 to 20 days to reach their destination. Due to this delay, each container will have an additional burden of up to $500–$1000. As a result, experts say that the cost of exports is likely to increase by 40–50 percent. On the other hand, it will be difficult to import crude oil directly from Iran. This will also cause oil prices to rise.

36) Title: ICC Amends Rules on Boundary Catches, Concussion Subs, and ODI Balls

Source: Sakshi

Date: 15-06-2025

Dubai: The International Cricket Council (ICC) has made changes to some of the rules currently in force in international cricket. The amendments have been made as per the recommendations of the ICC Cricket Committee to ensure that the use of two balls in ODIs, the concussion institute and catches taken at the boundary line are not controversial. The ICC has announced that these new amended rules will be implemented soon in all three formats – Test, ODI, and T20. These will be implemented in Test cricket from the 17th of this month. The changed rules will be implemented in ODI cricket from the 2nd of next month and in T20 cricket from the 10th of next month. Two Ball Rule: Now in ODI cricket, the bowling team is given two new balls at a time. One bowler from one end and another from the other end use two different balls. This will not happen anymore. Even if two new balls are given at the same time, they cannot be used simultaneously. One ball will be used from both ends from 1 to 34 overs, and the second new ball from 35 to 50 overs. If matches are shortened to 25 overs due to weather, only one new ball will be used until the end of the innings to maintain balance between bat and ball.

Concussion Substitution Rule: Previously, substitutes could be chosen based on strategy rather than replacing the exact type of player. Now, if a batter is concussed, another batter must replace them. Similarly, if a wicketkeeper, pacer, spinner, or all-rounder is injured, a substitute of the same type must be fielded. Teams must submit a list of player roles before the toss. Boundary Catch Clarification: If a fielder throws the ball up in the air while going out of bounds and catches it after re-entering, it will no longer be considered a catch if the ball is released and caught while stepping beyond the boundary line.

'Will look into all theories behind crash'

Neha LM Tripathi

letters@hindustantimes.com

NEW DELHI: The government will look into all possible theories of what could have caused the Air India plane crash this week, aviation minister Ram Mohan Naidu said on Saturday during the government's first briefing into the tragedy on Thursday – the deadliest of its kind in three decades.

Naidu said the Centre has also set up a high-level multi-disciplinary panel to ascertain the "root cause" of the crash of the London-bound Air India flight 171 in Ahmedabad and assess any contributing factors including mechanical failure, human error and regulatory compliances, in addition to the probe conducted by the Aircraft Accident Investigation Board (AAIB).

The panel, headed by Union home secretary Govind Mohan, was mandated to give its report in three months, Naidu said.

Separately, officials said India is also exploring plans to create a new "aviation safety board" on the lines of the National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB), an American agency that has a wide remit to probe accidents, including the aviation sector.

One of these officials said the new aviation safety board will likely supervise other regulators in the sector, such as the director general of civil aviation (DGCA).

The plan involves the collaboration of ministries of civil aviation and home and it is likely to be discussed in the meeting of the committee headed by the home secretary. "The officials are discussing and trying to decide exactly what the responsibilities and limits of the safety board will have," one of these officials said, adding that the scrutiny could extend to the policies and regulations of DGCA.

A second official added: "These (discussions on the constitution of the board) are initial talks and are aimed for the future. It will not be associated with the DGCA."

To be sure, the AAIB is an independent aviation safety body, empowered with the ability to make recommendations for future safety. But the AAIB's remit does not cover scrutiny of DGCA policies.

The first person quoted above said that one of the proposals is also to bring in transparency in aviation accident data and create a system like the NTSB's docket.

"There are autonomous bodies as safety boards. A need for a national safety board, legal autonomy, funding and international credibility is being discussed," the second official said.

A former official associated with the International Civil Aviation Organisation (ICAO), a specialised agency of the United Nations that sets international rules and standards for civil aviation, said: "There is no standard structure of a safety board in India and the need for having it has been discussed in the past," he said.

Officials said that while discussions have just begun, "It has to be seen what form does it take in the country: as a judicial authority or quasi-judicial or recommendatory nature".
